KMBQ Snow Report

Hey Snow Lovers! The Alaska Avalanche Information Center here with your weekly Snow Report thanks to support from Q99.7!

Last weekend's storms brought significant snowfall accumulation to Southcentral Alaska! Cold temperatures are in store the rest of this week with warming trend and more snow in the forecast over the weekend south of Anchorage and early next week in the Mat-Su area.

Avalanche danger is high in all backcountry areas. Hatcher Pass is reporting CONSIDERABLE avalanche danger above 3,500 foot elevation, and MODERATE below that. Turnagain Pass and Summit Lake areas report MODERATE avalanche danger and especially on steeper terrain. Careful snowpack evaluation and extreme caution in route-planning is highly advised in all Southcentral mountain areas. Go to AlaskaSnow.org for snow condition updates.

A full day rider's clinic is set for Sunday, January 29th in Eureka. All the details and registration can be found at AlaskaSnow.org.

With all the new snow to play in, avalanche rescue skills are even more important for staying safe in the backcountry. Details about upcoming programs in your area can be found at AlaskaSnow.org.

Remember if you are heading into the mountains go prepared. Take your beacon, shovel and probe and know how to use them so you can Live to Ride Another Day!

That's it for this week. Whatever you decide to do, be careful out there and keep thinking snow!
